From the Editor's desk—

Thank you for your patience. We had hoped to get this "Numisma" in the mail six weeks ago, but business has continued at an all time record pace. During 1955, we shall attempt to keep on a tighter schedule.

It is common knowledge, that, in both our sale catalogs and "Numisma," much unpublished information appears concerning U. S. numismatics. Since the recent appearance of a sale catalog (by another firm) utilizing the Breen Half Cent numbers, several collectors have asked us why we do not copyright the data that we publish. The answer is obvious—we want to contribute as much to numismatics as we possibly can. Any money we spend for research or information is well spent, if we can help our friends to further enjoy their hobby. The free dissemination of information is good for everybody; collector, dealer alike. However, we would like to make a simple request. When material is to be copied from our publications, we would appreciate a credit line. Where such data is to serve a strictly commercial purpose, we feel that written permission should be obtained. This is only fair. If our competitors wish to ignore this modest request for ethical behavior, the numismatic public and trade should be the judge of their actions and motivations.

Interest in Obsolete Paper continues at a new high. For those who appreciate the magnificent work of our early engravers, and the history of the firms and people who contributed so much to an almost lost art, we recommend the "Essay-Proof Journal." This splendid quarterly is published by the Essay-Proof Society, and easily ranks as the finest publication of its kind. Every numismatist who loves the beautiful vignettes on the early bank notes, should send Five Dollars to Albert H. Higgins, 70 University Place, New York 3, N. Y. This amount represents the yearly dues of an active member, which includes a subscription to the "Essay-Proof Journal."

Among the better known numismatists belonging to the Essay-Proof Society, we find Fred Boyd, H. K. Crofoot, Doug Ferguson, Dr. F. Limpert, Dr. J. A. Muscalus, S. K. Nagy, Wayte Raymond, Oscar Schilke, Arlie Slabaugh, Dr. Jimmie Sloss, Glenn Smedley, and your editor, among others.

"Numisma" has a slight backlog of "tough" questions that will eventually be answered. So if you sent in a hard-to-answer problem child, bear with us.

With best wishes for the new year . . .

THE QUESTION FORUM

We invite our readers to submit any questions or problems relating to U. S., Early American or Canadian Coins, Medals, Tokens, Literature, etc., including Patterns, Restrikes and similar material. The questions of most general interest will be answered in detail here; others will receive written replies on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Ques. Exactly how rare is the 1849 gold dollar with the small head, and are the circulated specimens that have been making the rounds really impaired proofs as some dealers are saying? G. P., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Ans. There are really four types of Philadelphia Mint gold dollars of 1849. Type I has the smallest head of the year; the coronet point midway between two stars, and no L on truncation of the bust. It is rare in all conditions, certainly the rarest of the four types, and possibly 15 to 20 times as rare as the closed wreath coins. One die variety of Type I comes only in proof. (When it was published as such, no non-proofs of the type were known, but we have recently seen about a dozen from several pairs of dies.) Type II is similar to Type I in almost all respects, but has an L (Longacre) on truncation of bust. It is very scarce, but not quite as rare as Type I. Type III is the regular Open Wreath dollar. It has a larger head, L on truncation, coronet point closer to star above it. The reverse is as on the first two types. The branch mint coins with Open Wreath reverse are all of Type III. Type IV differs only in the wreath, one extra group of leaves being added at the top of each branch; Closed Wreath. The relative duration of each type, which gives some hint of the relative rarity, is given in the following table. The Standard Catalogue will make a similar listing next year.

- |      |  |
|------|--|
| 1849 | Type I. Small head; no L; open wreath. Very rare.Coinage began May 8, 1849.      |
| 1849 | Type II. Similar; L on truncation. Rare.   |
| 1849 | Type III. Larger head; with L; coronet point nearer upper star; regular Open Wreath. |
| 1849 | O Type III. Three pairs dies sent June 2, 1849.                                      |
| 1849 | D Type III. Two pairs dies sent about the same date.                                 |
| 1849 | C Type III. Ex. rare. Two pairs dies sent June 11 and 13, 1849.                      |
| 1849 | Type IV. Closed Wreath.  |
| 1849 | C Type IV. Two reverses shipped July 10, 1849.                                       |

Summarizing, we find that the Type I and II coins were struck at Philadelphia only over a period of less than one month (May 8 to the beginning of June). Type III dies were in use at Philadelphia during the month of June and the beginning of July; during this period the dies were shipped to the branch mints. Type IV came into use at Philadelphia within the first week of July and continued until the end of the year, two dies being shipped to Charlotte on July 10. This ratio fully explains why Types I and II are rare; they were in use for only a coup'e of weeks apiece.

Ques. Can you give me some idea of what you pay for coins you need? For instance, would it be possible to give me a rough list based upon the current, 8th edition of Yeoman's Guidebook? W. A., Merrick, N. Y.

Ans. There is a current tendency to overplay (i.e. overvalue) the so-called popular U.S. coins. This has led to speculative operations and often misleading "we will pay" advertising. For these reasons, we have conservatively turned to the less known, odd U.S. series, and those regular coins that are often unappreciated. Catalog valuations are at best indicative, and for that reason often confusing. Many collectors (and dealers) turn to us when selling "important" individual pieces because our research and study facilities are not equaled by any firm in the country. The following rough list, in response to your question, may give some idea of what we can pay, in some instances, against the current guidebook.
